THE SHIELD OF SORROW.

When Heaven disadres the sacred tie Which binds two faithful souls in one, Where shall the sad survivor fly, The arrows of despair to shun?

Oh! can the musing hours of grief A pause from keen remembrance know? Or rooted sorrow find relief From empty forms of outward woe?

Can fortune's smile his peace recal? Or can the sprightly song and dance, Where pleasure's festive train in all The mazy rounds of joy advance !

Ah, no !-this world no cure bestows; In vain is every human art; From pure Religion only flows A balm to heal the wounded heart.

PROM TAPPAN'S LYRICS

When thou calmly sleepest in the dust, love! And on thy grave the tall grass grows, Will it be thine to think of him, love ! Whose widowed tear, in secret, flows?

When thou gladly seekest thy native bowers, And revellest in thy Eden-bliss, Wilt thou not, as thou weavest you world's flowers, Lend a thought to the few, Love gave in this?

When mortality's tie is loosed, and never Shall delights that have charmed thee, charm thee

When the cloud of grief has gone, and forever,-And the sigh and tear, alike, are o'er,

Awhile, leave the shrines that ceaseless burn And warmed with the glow of remembrance, love! To the scenes of affection, fondly return?

O, surely, thy spirit will meet in heaven. Some dear reminiscence of days that have flown; And the thought that to the past is given. Will be pure as the Holiest before the throne !

FROM "FANNY,"

A Poem, published in New York. Fanny was younger once than she is now, And prettier of course : I do not mean To say, that there are wrinkles on her brow, Yet, to be candid, she is past eighteen-Perhaps past twenty-but the girl is shy About her age, and God forbid that I Should get myself in trouble by revenling

A secret of this sort : I have too long Loved pretty woman with a poet's feeling, And when a boy, in day dream and in song, llave knelt me down and worshipp'd them : alas They never thanked me for't-but let that pass. I've felt full many a heart-ache in my day,

At the mere rustling of a muslin gown, And caught some dreadful colds, I blush to say, While shivering in the shade of beauty's frown They say her smiles are sun beams-it may be-But ne'er a sun-beam would she throw on me.

YOUTH, MANHOOD, AND AGE.

By J. Montgomery.

Youth, all youth, to thee in life's gay morning, New and wonderful are heaven and earth; flealth the hills, content the fields adorning, Nature rings with melody and mirth. Love invisible, beneath, above, Conquers all things-all things yield to love.

Time, swift Time, from years their motion stealing Unpiere'd hath sober Manhood brought ; Truth her pure and humble forms revealing. Tinges Fancy's fairy dreams with thought; Till the heart, no longer prone to roam, laves, loves best, the quiet bliss of home.

Age, Old Age, in sickness, pain and sorrow, Creeps with lengthening shadow o'er the scene file was yesterday, 'tis death to-morrow, And to day the agony between; Then how longs the weary soul for thes, Beight and beautiful Eternity.

As it is necessary to keep up a form of godliness, we ought to do homage to the great Creator in acts of external and bodily worship. With this view we are enjoined to assemble ourselves together, to perform this solemn act of reverence to the Deity; not, I presume, because he is more accessible to the united prayers of an assembled body, or because his ear is more open to praises thus publicly preferred, than to the secret acts of private devotion; but, because he has so wisely framed us, with such corresponding sympathies, as to assimulate us into the likeness of each other. And as all the motions of the body flow from, naturally express, and even promote and improve the affections within, so they are rendered sub servient to the exhalted purpose of devotion to the Supreme Being. For as "iron" is said to " sharpen iron, so does a man's countenance brighten that of his friend." It is thus we strengthen and encourage each other, at the same time that we "present our bodies living sacrifices to God, which is our reasonable service" Meeting together for religious purposes has been custo mary with the pious in all ages, and the practice of social worship is coeval with the history of man. Cain and Abel came together to make their offerings to the Lord. The jews assembled in the sanctuary, first in the tabernacle, afterwards in the temple, to offer sacrifices to God.— Shall Christians then neglect these usages of pri mitive piety, ancient as altars and temples them selves, and refuse to assemble themselves together, as "the manner of some was" in the Apostles' days, of whom it was declared, that "of faith they had made shipwreck."

RECLUSE.

[The following vivid description of the conflagration of the steamboat Phonix, taken from Miss Wright's " View of Society and Manners in America," contains sufficient of the sublime and terrible to harrow the soul of any one not dead to the feelings of humanity. The heart that can behold this living picture-so many fellow beings surrounded by death on every side, awakened at midnight from their rest, escaping from the fury of the flaming pile to encounter the raging waves amidst the tempest-and not swell with a painful sensation, is not to be envied. The noble conduct of the intrepid young commander and his crew, in devoting themselves, in that moment, so trying to the human soul, to almost certain destruction, for the preservation of the passengers who had confid ed themselves to their protection, forms a bold relief to the distressing scene. Surely one glorious act like this must blot from the book of the accusing spirit, many of the frailties and errors incident to mortality. Far more deserving of the title of "heroes" are they, and brighter the halo around them, than those who have recorded their names on the page of immortality with the blood of their species - Sat Eve. BURNING OF THE PHŒNIX.

" One of the finest Steamboats ever built in the United States, lately ran upon the inland sea, and was destroyed ten days since by fire, in a manner truly terrible. The captain of the vessel had faltruly terrible. The captain of the vessel had fal-len sick, and entrusted its management to bis son, a young man just turned of one and twenty. Mak-ing for St. John's with opwards of forty passengers, they encountered the equinoctial gale, which blew with violence right ahead. The fine vessel, how-ever, encountered it bravely, and dashed onwards through the storm, until an hour after indinglit, when she had gained the broadest part of the take Some careless mortal, who had been to seek his supper in the pantry, left a candle burning on the shelf, which, after some time, caught another which was ranged above.

Was ranged above.

The passengers were asleep, or at least quiet in their births, when a man at the engine perceived, in some dark recess of the vessel, an unusual light. Approaching the spot, he heard the cracking of fire, and found the door of the pantry a glowing and terminals wall of embers. He ling of fire, and found the door of the pantry a glowing and tremulous wall of embers. He had scarcely time to turn himself, ere he was enveloped in flames; rushing past them, he attempted to burst into the ladies' apartment by a small door which opened into the interior of the vessel; it was locked on the inside, and the noise of the storm seemed to drown all his cries and blows.—Hurrying upon the deck, he gave the alarm to the captain, and flew to the women's cabin. Ere he leaped down the stairs, the flames had burst thro' the inner door, and had already seized upon the curtains of the bed next to it. You may conceive the scene which followed.

In the mean time the young captain roused his crew and his male passengers, which to make for the nearest Island. Summoning his men around him, and stating to them that all the lives on board could not be saved in the boats, he has their content to save the passengers. lives on board could not be saved in the boats, he asked their consent to save the passengers, and take death with him. All acquiesced unanimously; and hasteful to let down the boats. While thus engaged; the flames burst through the decks, and shrouded the pilot, the mast and the chimney in a column of flames. One last clirick, and the poor creature was whelmed in flood and fire. Swimming round the blazing hulk, and calling aloud to such of his companions as might be within hearing, to keep near it, he saked her the falling of a spar. He seized one while set on fire, and quenching it, continued to floor cound the wreek, deeming that the light might he a signal, should the boats be able to return; but these had to row, heavily laden, six miles through a mountainous sea. FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

The more I see of mankind, and the more ex perience I have by a commerce with the world, the more am I convinced that self-interest, and the hope of advantage are the principal springs of human actions. How very few, indeed, appear to live under the government of that Divine law, which teaches, to "do unto others as we would others should do unto us." In censuring the vices and follies of mankind, the moralist and the divine, in attempting to correct them, should not, however, forget that he himself is also a mansubject to infirmities in common with his fellow men-he should remember the difficulty of over coming the violent conflicts of corrupt propensities and passions, and cast the veil of charity over the failings of his fellow creatures. We are quick in observing our own interests, and keen to pursue them; and in this pursuit we too often overleap the bounds of right, and sometimes even "burst law's mered inclosure"-forfeiting that dignified title to pre-eminence in the works of the Creator, as declared by Pope, "an honest man's the noblest work of God." I have sometimes the noblest work of God." ROMAN LADY'S TOILET.

Although the ancient authors are generally very minute in their account of Roman manners, yet they have neither turnished us with an account of the interior arrangements of the ladies' dressing rooms, nor such description of the separate part of their customary apparel, as to enable us to follow them through all the revolutions of fashion. The same desire to please which actuates the modern belle, no doubt influenced the Roman brauty; for time and place make no other difference in a pas-sion which has ever been the same, than in the manner of its display.

The Roman ladies' dressing-table appears to

"With curls on curls, like different stories, rise, Her towering locks, a structure to the skies." The fashion of wearing false hair was not un-known to the Roman ladies, who went so far as to improve the mode into a wig, which was at one time dressed in imitation of a military casque.— The curls were confined with small chains, or rings of gold, and bodkins studded with precious rings of gold, and bookins studded with precous-stones. Fillets of purple or white ribband, orna-mented with pearls, were also worn on the head, and splendid jewels in the ears. There were some decorations for the head which were con-adered peculiarly indicative of female decorum;

PEDANTRY.

A pedantic gentleman who was lately fravelling, and above common language, stopped at an inn to get himself and his horse refreshment. Seeing some boys when he alighted, he ordered one to 'circumambulate his horse two or three times round the mansion, then permit him to inhale a no terate quantity of aqueous particles, after which to give him proper vegetable nu-triment, and he would make him pecuniary satisfaction.

The boy being unaccustomed to such language, ran into the house, and told his father a prince was without who spoke French; the father comes out, and hearing the man scold, asked him what was the matter .- Sir, (says the gentleman) I invoke all the genii astestis's that your offspring rejected me, and refused to put in practice my desires: Now, sir, you I implore to enforce obedience upon them by correction, and then immediately provide some nutricious substance, to strengthen nature, cured over vegetable fuel, as I abhor the sulphurous tincture of minerals: remember to get me some stimulous with it.' The innkeeper, without hesitation, concluded him a madian, and with his lusty wife, seized and tied him hands and feet to a ring in the barn floor, then went for a doctor, who put a moderate blister on his back, which in three days brought him to his wandering senses.

SMUGGLING .- The inducement to amuggle Siturotation — The inducement to smuggle certain articles in England, Ireland and Scotland is so great, that every artifice is resorted to, and ingenuity is on the stretch to devise means that may clude the vigilance of the custom-house officers. A brig called the Fortune was seized on the 30th of August last in Burnt Island roadstead, on board of which were found 5,153 bis of tobacco, 10 do. soulf, upwards of 1000 gallons of gin, 1512 gounds black tea, and 72 packs of playing cards. The place of concealment in the brig was accessible only from the stern. A false stern had been made, and a false stern post; and between that and nade, and a take stern post; and between that and the true stern were two places through which the contraband goods were conveyed into the lower part of the brig. The apparent cargo of the vessel was wood. So confident was the master that his real cargo could not be discovered, that he laid off Burnt Island a day and night, without taking any measure to land or secure the contraband goods. Agreeably to the revenue laws, the master, mate and the erew, are severally to pay 100 pounds, and be imprisoned until the sum is paid.

Of the Porto Rico Expedition, the New-York Mercantile Advertiser says: "We expect daily to hear interesting accounts If it be true that the troops, which landed at Porto Rico belonged to the expedition, it is not improbable that they have, ere this, taken possession of the Island. It is said the whole force consists of 2,200 men, about nine hundred of which went from this city, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

South America—By an arrival from Laguira, we learn that the Royal Gen. Morales had exacuted Maracaybo, and returned to his old quarters at Porto Cabello. It appears that Gen. Montilla had concentrated his forces at Rio de la Hache, and marched immediately against Morales, who must have fallen an easy prey, had he attempted to contest the point. The Patriot forces entered Maracaybo on the 19th of Sept. President Bolivar and Gen. D'Evereaux were daily expected from Quito, when it was expected that active and vigorous measures would be concerted for a needly reous measures would be concerted for a speedy re-duction of Porto Cabello, and the consequent abolishment of royal power in that quarter.

MR. MATHEWS.—The reputation that Mr. Mathews has gained in Europe, is not likely to sustain soy diminution in this country. I have had the good fortune to see the exhibition of his amazing talent, during three nights, and the only fatigue that I felt was from excessive laughter. He pretends to give a picture of the present age, in its customs, manners, fashions and vices; and in his own person holds a mirror up to nature most admirably. He is without doubt, one of the prodigies of the day. The flexibility of his voice, and of the muscles, particularly about his mouth, the infinite variety of expression, that he throws into all his characters, and the just adaption of dress to them, astenish and almost bewilder the senses of his auditors. He astarizes without mercy, the prevailing finibles, fripperies and vancies of this relightened age. John Bull is presented in all the fullness of his "naked deformity." and his interesting offspring of Corinthians, Dandies &c. &c. are made to wince under the united attacks of face, voice and figure. To my mind, in his representation of French character and particularities his success is most complete. His form being tall and slender fits him most particularly, for finishing the portrait of a lively, irritable, and frisk; Frenchman. Nothing escapes him, and he seems to have acquired matinetively, what with others would required matinetively, what with others would represent the second of the production of the pre

A Rogue caught .- Under this title it is stated in the Connecticut Courier, published at Bridgeport, that a "travelling pedlar" had been convicted at that place of stealing a silver table spoon, for which he was sentenced to receive " an appropriate number of stripes." But not relishing the number of stripes." But not relishing the punishment, a compromise took place, by which it appears that the civil authority agreed to let the culprit escape if he made a surrender of his whole stock in trade. On complying with the conditions, however, the unlucky pedlar was again committed to prison, it having appeared that a great part of his stock was stolen property, and that he was of a gang of follows. perty, and that he was of a gang of fellows who made their escape from Hartford pri-son last summer by burrowing through the

The last accounts from Pensacola confinue to give distressing accounts of the fever in that place. A letter from a gentleman a few miles from the town, states that he knows of but three persons out of the whole American population, who escaped the disease. As many as 20 had died of a day; for many of whom, coffins could not be procured-Some in attempting to fiv had died in the woods, and were left unburied. He gives it as his opinion, that the fever will not abate, while there are subjects for it to act upon-Many of the Spaniards had taken it, but few of them

State of England .- A letter from England to a gentleman in New-York, states, " we are politically in the same situation as when you left us-trade worse in point of profit, if not so as to quantity. The national debt hangs like a mill-stone about the neck of John Bull, and prevents his exercising his wonted activity, or enjoy-ing that comfort which was formerly his portion. But to speak without a metaphor, taxation has drawn so much capita! from general circulation into the hands of money dealers and fund holders, that while a few capitalists are immensely rich. the great body of the industrious classes languishing for the want of the vital fluid .- I trust our ministers will see the necessity of more enlarged economy, and do all they can to lessen the burthens of our suffering country."

LAW CASE.

The rights of Ladies protected; bad hus-bands look out.

At the session in the county of Glou cester, (N. J.) October 5, 1822, Elijah Wilson was charged with having committed an assault and battery upon his wife, to which he plead not guilty. It appeared on the trial that he had been in the disgraceful practice of kicking and cuffing his wife-and that in the late instance he had cut a whip, and had whipped her very severely. After hearing the evidence, the returned a verdict, guilty; upon which the court, considering the offence a disgraceful and unlawful act, sentenced him to hard labour in the state prison for one year, and to stand committed until Marquis La Fayette.—The following extracts from letters will be read with pleasure by all who take an interest in our revolutionary history, and in the character and feelings of such worthies of the revo-lution as General Bloomfield and Colonel Ogden. It may be well to mention, in order to illustrate the reverence in which the Marquis La Fayette continues to hold the memory of Washington, that the impression upon the seal of the letters is a beautiful and correct likeness of the American hero, surrounded by a glory.

On Sunday evening last, Mrs. MARY ANN ROBINSON, aged 34, consort of Jehu Robinson, of a lingering illness. The deceased was an amiable and dutiful daughter, a kind mother, and an affectionate wife—and though her friends will long lament this earthly separation, yet their loss is her eternal gain. For some months previous to her dissolution, she had longed for the moment of her departure, to be with Jesus, in whose boundless guadance and merch her heart seemed perfectly. podness and mercy her heart seemed perfectly conscious. Mechanical Wonder.

Mechanical Wonder.

Title citizens of Philatelphia went in crowds to see the Mechanical Museum, when it was exhibited here, and more recently to the famous Androidew of Mr. Haddock, and willingly paid for their admission; and hundreds travelled to Chesant Hill and gave their dollar to be allowed to set the ingenious contrivance of Redheffer. Who has not heard of the other which was made to articulate words? both so celebrated in Europe. And who would not give a haif eagle to see them? But all these wonders are surpassed by a piece of mechanism now in this city, which is far more curious, splendid and surprising than any thing that have been exhibited for money.

This wonderful specimen of art consists in a beautiful golden bird, we sught to the life, and covered with brilliant plumage richly imitated in ename! The beholder first see only a superb hox of gold and precious stones ornamented with exquisite enamel painting; from this box the bird rises and moving his head and wings in the most natural manner, he chirps his satutation and then pours out a song as rich in melody as that of the sweetest among the feathered choir, and after entertaining the auditor with this delightful music, vanishes suddenly from sight, leaving the spectator wrapt in pleasing astonishment. And how much does it cost to see this prodigy? The best of all is, it is shown freely without cost or charge, to all those whose good fortune leads them to purchase Lottery Tickets, halves or quarters, at Cibbs's Lucky Office, Gibbs's Lucky Office, No. 4½ South Third Street, Philadelphia.

N. D. It is reported that this elegant production was purchased at a large price, by a subscription raised among a number of respectable mechanica, and presented by them to its present owner, in token of their acknowledgment of the great advantage they have found in purchasing their Lotters Tickets at his truly lucky office. nov 9—1t

LYRICS,

BY WILLIAM B. TAPPAN, just Published

this city, price 629 cents.

On the affectation of fine names.

Who wants a wife ? I know three sisters gay,
Not vulgar Margerys, Janes, or Joans are they;
No—they have names enough to fill a tub—
Miss Barbara, Juliana, Margaretta;
Miss Leonora, Caroline, Janetta;
And Miss Joanna, Beraphina—Grubb!

A gentleman having fallen into the rivser Ex, was mentioning the circumstance to Sir T—A—, and added, "as you may suppose, I was pretty wet." "Yes." replied the punning baronet, "I should think you were wet in the Ex-stream."

Canon of Criticism.—The Cardinal de Reta asked Menage one day to give him some ides of poetry, that he might be able to form a sort of judgment of the mass that was brought to him. "Sir," said Menage, " this is a matter that would occupy more time than you could spare; but I'll tell you what you may may do-whenever they read any of their poems to you, say at a venture, 'That's very bad'-you'll seldom be wrong."

Comparison not Odious .- At the house of Madame la Duchesse de Maine, the company were one day amusing themselves by comparing and finding ingenious distinctions between one object and another,-"What difference," said the Duchess to the Cardinal de Polignac, "is there be-tween me and a watch?" "Madame," replied the Cardinal, "a watch makes the hours, and you make us forget them."

A Lady the other day was asked by an envious female acquaintance her age :-"Really," said she, "I do not know, but I must be about thirty." "It is very extraordinary," replied the other with a sneer, "that you do not know your age."-"I never count my years," said the Lady; "I am not afraid of losing a single year; none of my female friends will rob me of

In England it is well known that the Yankees are ridiculed with the name of Bumbkins. An English lady on a tour through the northern part of this country, passing a field of pumpkins inquired what they were? Her companion replied that they were pumpkins. "Barbarous wretches," exclaimed the lady, (mistaking the name for bumbkins,) " barbarous wretches, to bury their friends with their heads out of ground !"

At the late Lewis Assizes, & landlord brought some wine to a Gentleman dining in a private room, which he did not approve; and he requested it might be changed .-The landlord expressed his surprise at this, as he said it was greatly admired by some gentlemen of the Bar, who were drinking it above stairs: "Aye," replied the other very coolly, " they are not Judges."

A worthy Antiquary was one day edifying the French academy with a monstrous long detail of the comparitive price of commodities at different periods, when La Fontaine observed, 'This man knows the price of every thing except time.'

Mural Economy .-- An experienced farm er of the Netherlands states, that an ounce of saltpetre dissolved in a pint of water with an ounce of flour of sulphur, and scat tered upon grain in a granary, is an infal-lible means of preventing it from spoiling.

A. ATKINSON'S SUPERIOR PATENT SPRING RIDING SADDLES, AND PATENT LAPORTE BRIDLES, &c.

HAVING purchased of JOHN J. MORRIS, of the city of New-York, the sole and entire right of making and vending his newly invented SPRING SEAT and SPRING POINTED SADDLES, within the city and county of Philadelphia, offers them for Sale,

AT HIS SADDLE & HARNESS MANUFACTORY, No. 5 North Fifth street.

Gentlemen are respectfully invited to call and see the principle on which they are constructed.—
Nearly two years' trial of the above Saddles in New York, has rendered comments unnecessary—confident of their utility he offers them to the public, that they may decide on their superiority.

The Laporte Bridles are constructed in such a manner as to curb the most vicious Horse without injuring him, and with perfect ease and safety to the rider. They are well adapted for Ladies, and persons not in the practice of riding, as it gives them full power over their Horses in cases of fright.—They can also be applied to Harness of every description. Also, for sale, an assortment of Superior STEEL and PLATED BITTS and STIRRUPS.

PROPOSALS BY PARDON DAVIS. FOR PUBLISHING BY SUBSCRIPTION, THE PRINCIPLES

Government of the United States,

Adapted to the Use of Schools.

This work need only be announced, and its plan developed, to discover its utility and ensure its adoption and success. The work is to consist of the Constitution of each State, that of the Unit ed States, according to the latest amendments, and the Articles of confederation by which the States are connected; with a code of questions attached to each, the answers to which will lead the pupil to a critical investigation of the leading characteristics of the government of each state.

That is most proper for boys to learn which will be most useful for them when they become men.

We seem almost to begin to think that professional men alone possess sufficient knowledge of the government to direct our public concerns. The reason is evident. The principles to be inculcated by this work are not sufficiently known except to them, but the general dissemination of it throughout the United States will furnish a work of reference to the whole of the principles by which they are governed, which will of course become accessible to every family: every citizen will thus see the relative situation in which he stands with respect to the nation, and feel his own importance in directing that government, which, without this at-tention, must degenerate into an instrument of tyranny, and eventuate in despotism

Philadelphia, Sept. 28, 1822.

The utility of a School book, such as Mr. Davis proposes to publish, in our opinion, admits of no doubt. A knowledge of the Constitutions of the several states, and of the articles of General the several states, and of the acticles of General Coofederation, ought to form an essential part of the education of every freeman in the Union. No way can be more likely to diffuse and perpetuate this knowledge, than embodying it into a book to be read in common Schools. Early impressions are the most permanent. It is sincerely hoped the plan proposed will meet with due encouragement. S. B. WYLIE,
